My dear Mr. Fox,

Mr. Robo could not make the telephone message a request for my presence at the Aldine in order to see you before you leave for Washington, and I suppose you merely intended to give me an opportunity to speak of the shipment of Stat bolleau and the probable necessity for breaking out Vault No. 5, which is steel, and under the seal of the Director.

I think if the Treasurer can make known his intention as to the further amount to be transferred from your vaults without violating any rule of his department, that he should give you such information respecting the matter as will save labor and anxiety in the future. Probably I can do no better than rest on the note I sent you two or three days ago. It covers the entire ground.

Further, and in reference to the demands made upon the "improvement" appropriation, it seems to me that it will be judicious to consult with the Director before going to the Supervising Architect, because, as you may have noticed, the clause was amended so as to strike out "for a vault in the center of the basement," and make the entire $220,000 applicable to "improvements" and "other necessary work." I know think this is construed to cover any vault to be built, and any "improvement" not specially named. I hope the estimate of the new work can be made and the bulk of the appropriation absorbed before these demands are urged.

Very truly & respectfully

P.S. - Having waited half an hour I find it necessary to get some dinner, and will keep this note to explain what I wanted to say.

My Dear Mr. Fox

Mr. Robo could not make the telephone message a request for my presence at the Aldine in order to see you before you leave for Washington, and I suppose you sincerely intended to give me an opportunity to speak of the shipment of Std. Dollars and the probable necessity for breaking out vault No. 5, which is steel, and under the seal of the Director.

I think, if the Treasurer can make known his intention as to the further amount to be transferred from your vaults without violating any rule of his department, that he should give you such information respecting the matter as will save labor and counting in the future. Probably I can do no better than rest on the note I sent you two or three days ago. It covered the entire ground.

Further, and in reference to the demands made upon the "improvement" appropriation, it seems to me that it will be judicious to consult with the Director before going to the Supervising Architect, because, as you may have noticed, the clause was amended so as to strike out "for a vault in the center of the basement", and make the entire $220,000 applicable to "improvements" and "other necessary work". I learned that this is construed to cover every vault to be lined, and any "improvement" not specially named. I hope the estimate of the new work can be ready and the bulk of the appropriation absorbed before these demands are needed.

Very Truly & Respectfully
M.H. Cobb

P.S. Having waited half an hour I find it necessary to get some dinner, and will leave this note to explain what I wanted to say.
